MUSEUM LECTURE April 22, 8:30 p.m.

POEMS ABOUT PAINTINGS will be presented at The Cleveland Museum of Art by The First Poetry Trio of Oberlin College on Friday, April 22 at 8:30 p.m. in the Museum auditorium.

The program will center on specific paintings, each of which will be illustrated on a screen at the same time one of the members of the trio is reading a poem concerning that painting. The paintings read about range from the cave frescoes at Ajanta in India to the work of Marc Chagall. The poems are by 19th and 20th century poets. The trio includes Oberlin professors Simon Barenbaum, Associate Professor of French, who will read the French poems; Wolfgang Stechow, Professor Emeritus of Art, who will read the German poems; and Warren Taylor, Professor of English, who will read the English poems.

The trio began reading poems in three different languages "to make the shared enjoyment of heard poetry a living force in the college community". Since then the trio has presented many programs in Oberlin, in other communities and on the air.
